

ITIN Rental Advantage

Explore an investment-property route for qualifying ITIN borrowers.

DEDICATED ITIN LANE | 700 INDICATED SCREEN

Who it is for

Investors seeking an eligible rental-financing program using an Individual Taxpayer Identification Number. The ITIN route is a distinct borrower review and should not be treated as interchangeable with the foreign-national program.

Ideal properties and transactions

A business-purpose rental acquisition or refinance with a defined ownership structure, documented funds and supportable property income. Confirm the selected lane before making assumptions about required identification or permitted borrowing entities.

Credit, experience and liquidity

The flyer lists an indicated credit screen of 700 and a documented dedicated screen of 75% LTV. Capacity and qualification require review. It does not state a universal DSCR minimum, accepted credit-file type or immigration-status rule. Discuss your ownership and management history and cash remaining after closing. The flyer does not establish a universal experience or reserve requirement. Prepare a closing-funds reconciliation that separates the down payment, transaction costs, required reserves and your own operating cushion. Explain any partner capital or borrowed funds and the other properties supported by the same liquidity. Ask which funds must be verified before closing and which must remain available afterward.

ITIN Rental Advantage | Planning guide

Leverage and valuation framework

LTV compares the proposed loan with the lender's accepted property value. A purchase, rate-and-term refinance and cash-out transaction can have different limits. Ask which value basis and seasoning rule apply; improvements or an anticipated appraisal do not automatically increase eligible proceeds. Cash to close also includes fees, escrows and any required reserves. For a refinance, subtract existing liens and closing costs to estimate net proceeds. Keep headline capacity, credit screens and maximum leverage separate: the approved combination depends on the entire file.

Rental income and coverage

Provide leases or supported market rent and a complete debt-service estimate. Ask how the eligible lane evaluates coverage and the credit record. An ITIN is not itself evidence of sufficient income, available reserves or an approved repayment plan.

Loan structure, repairs and closing

Confirm the property condition required at closing and whether any repair escrow is permitted. Renovation funding and repair escrows require review under the selected loan structure. If substantial work or lease-up is needed, ask whether separate renovation or bridge financing must precede a rental takeout; a later refinance requires its own approval. Request the rate structure, amortization, maturity, any interest-only period, escrow treatment and prepayment provisions together. Compare total ownership cost and the payment after any reset, not only the initial monthly payment.

Property and location considerations

Confirm eligible property type, occupancy and state availability. Disclose title ownership and any differences among the borrower, guarantor and entity records so documentation can be reconciled early in the process.

Holding period, exits and stress tests

Set a holding period and compare the loan term, prepayment schedule and any planned sale or refinance. Model lower rent, higher insurance or taxes, a vacancy and a major repair. For illustration only, $2,500 qualifying monthly rent divided by $2,000 qualifying debt expense gives 1.25 coverage; the lender's actual formula and accepted income may differ. This simplified ratio is not net operating profit. A future refinance depends on then-current value, income and program eligibility and is not guaranteed.

Documentation to prepare

Start with the address, legal unit count, transaction purpose, purchase price or estimated value, requested loan amount, monthly rent and current occupancy. Add the purchase contract or existing debt information, leases and rent roll, operating history, insurance and tax figures, ownership/entity records and evidence of available funds. Explain any unusual property use, lease-up, credit event or closing deadline. Provide account statements and identity information through the secure process Karpata specifies rather than in a public inquiry. A complete first package makes it easier to identify the correct lane. Use the secure checklist for identification, ITIN-related documentation, ownership records, credit and funds. Do not send taxpayer identifiers in the public quote form. Ask which documents and verification standards the specific program requires.

Limitations and questions to resolve

All published screens remain subject to borrower, property and program approval and may not apply together. Confirm current state availability, eligible loan purpose, pricing, fees, reserves, guarantees and conditions in a written quote. No minimum DSCR does not mean no underwriting. A business-purpose investment loan is not a consumer home mortgage. Confirm any requirement not specified here before committing funds or relying on a closing date. Final approved documents govern the transaction.
