UP TO 20 ACRES, SUBJECT TO ELIGIBILITY

Who it is for

Investors evaluating eligible rural rental properties with acreage. The flyer describes potential eligibility up to 20 acres, not blanket approval for every use, location or parcel of that size.

Ideal properties and transactions

A rentable residential property in a smaller market with credible tenant demand, acceptable access and workable utilities. Review a longer vacancy or sale period and the cost of maintaining land, wells, septic systems or outbuildings.

Credit, experience and liquidity

The flyer lists an indicated credit screen of 620 and a no-ratio option available to 75% LTV, subject to eligibility. Capacity and other leverage are tailored. Acreage eligibility up to 20 acres remains subject to property and program review. Discuss your ownership and management history and cash remaining after closing. The flyer does not establish a universal experience or reserve requirement. Prepare a closing-funds reconciliation that separates the down payment, transaction costs, required reserves and your own operating cushion. Explain any partner capital or borrowed funds and the other properties supported by the same liquidity. Ask which funds must be verified before closing and which must remain available afterward.

Leverage and valuation framework

LTV compares the proposed loan with the lender's accepted property value. A purchase, rate-and-term refinance and cash-out transaction can have different limits. Ask which value basis and seasoning rule apply; improvements or an anticipated appraisal do not automatically increase eligible proceeds. Cash to close also includes fees, escrows and any required reserves. For a refinance, subtract existing liens and closing costs to estimate net proceeds. Keep headline capacity, credit screens and maximum leverage separate: the approved combination depends on the entire file.

Rental income and coverage

Support rent with local evidence appropriate to a thinner market. A limited number of comparable rentals may require closer review. Model a cash-flow shortfall even if an eligible no-ratio lane is used, and identify funds available during extended vacancy.

Loan structure, repairs and closing

Confirm the property condition required at closing and whether any repair escrow is permitted. Renovation funding and repair escrows require review under the selected loan structure. If substantial work or lease-up is needed, ask whether separate renovation or bridge financing must precede a rental takeout; a later refinance requires its own approval. Request the rate structure, amortization, maturity, any interest-only period, escrow treatment and prepayment provisions together. Compare total ownership cost and the payment after any reset, not only the initial monthly payment.

Property and location considerations

Disclose acreage, agricultural activity, income-producing land uses, access rights and private utility systems. A rural residential rental option should not be treated as approval for a working farm, remote land loan or an unpermitted second dwelling.

Holding period, exits and stress tests

Set a holding period and compare the loan term, prepayment schedule and any planned sale or refinance. Model lower rent, higher insurance or taxes, a vacancy and a major repair. For illustration only, $2,500 qualifying monthly rent divided by $2,000 qualifying debt expense gives 1.25 coverage; the lender's actual formula and accepted income may differ. This simplified ratio is not net operating profit. A future refinance depends on then-current value, income and program eligibility and is not guaranteed.

Documentation to prepare

Start with the address, legal unit count, transaction purpose, purchase price or estimated value, requested loan amount, monthly rent and current occupancy. Add the purchase contract or existing debt information, leases and rent roll, operating history, insurance and tax figures, ownership/entity records and evidence of available funds. Explain any unusual property use, lease-up, credit event or closing deadline. Provide account statements and identity information through the secure process Karpata specifies rather than in a public inquiry. A complete first package makes it easier to identify the correct lane. Prepare parcel and acreage information, photos, utility details, leases or rent support and local comparable properties. Ask how outbuildings, excess land and unusual property features affect valuation and eligible collateral.

Limitations and questions to resolve

All published screens remain subject to borrower, property and program approval and may not apply together. Confirm current state availability, eligible loan purpose, pricing, fees, reserves, guarantees and conditions in a written quote. No minimum DSCR does not mean no underwriting. A business-purpose investment loan is not a consumer home mortgage. Confirm any requirement not specified here before committing funds or relying on a closing date. Final approved documents govern the transaction.
